FIRM FOR EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Moody Orders Strict Enforcement in Circular Letter.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Attorney-General Moody yesterday issued a circular letter of instructions to United States attorneys regarding prosecutions of violations of the eight-hour law, in which he says the government is determined upon a strict enforcement of this statute as relating to public works of the United States.

All the United States attorneys are directed to diligently investigate all complaints which may come to them from any source of violation of the law, and upon their own initiative to make investigation if there appears any reasonable ground for suspecting a violation, and where sufficient evidence can be secured it must be submitted to a grand jury, with a view to securing an indictment.

BIG REAL ESTATE OWNER.

Senator Proctor of Vermont Has a Way of Picking Up Bargains.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The other day when Senator Proctor of Vermont came out of the White House, an intimate friend made the interesting statement that Senator Proctor probably owns real estate in more cities than any other man in the country. He has made a practice for years of picking up bargains in city and suburban property in all parts of the country. For many years he has been an extensive traveler, and in his journeys whenever he learned of a promising piece of city property for sale, he has bought it. He is not known to have disposed of any of these purchases. Senator Proctor is said to be one of the wealthiest men in the senate.

Making Money Out of a Wastepile.

The people of Chicago are lucky, says Wm. Hard in the Technical World Magazine for December. Witness the rock heap which was bequeathed to them by the contractors who dug the Chicago drainage canal. But what could be a harder stroke of bad luck than to be encumbered with a heterogeneous scrap pile of some fifty million cubic yards of dirt and stone? How to rid themselves of this monster incumber without depleting the city treasury would be a question for the citizens to decide at any other time. But this is just the point where luck came to the rescue.

The people of Chicago are lucky because they dug their big ditch at the psychological moment. Just as the concrete age is being ushered in, and building contractors have visions of mountains of crushed stone and rivers of cement, the people of Chicago drop onto the market with twenty-three million cubic yards of available rock. But even millions of cubic yards of rock could not break the Chicago faith in concrete, and the big contractor, John M. Ewen, jumped under the market with the highest bid for Chicago's backyard scrap pile. At the present price of crushed stone in Chicago, the waste heap will sell for as much as it cost to dig the whole drainage canal.

In addition to selling the crushed stone, concrete blocks are to be made right along the banks of the canal and shipped to market, just as bricks are at present. Mr. Ewen will install half a million dollars' worth of machinery, which will crush the stone and make it into concrete blocks. The actual cost of the drainage canal did not exceed 36 million dollars, and Mr. Ewen believes that the crushed stone and cement blocks will sell for at least that amount. Thus will a new industry be established, and the people of Chicago reimbursed for their trouble in digging their big canal.
